PRICE THREE CENTS

12 FROM TOWN ARE DRAWN FOR JURY SERVICE

Grand Jurors Report
Nov. 6 and Petit
Group 3 Days
Later.

LIST INCLUDES EIGHT WOMEN

Twelve residents of Gettysburg were drawn for jury service at the November session of court in Adams county this morning by the jury commissioners, their clerk, P. S. Orner and Sheriff B. W. Spence. Both of the jury commissioners participated in the drawing today. They are P. E. Brough and Henry Stover.

This morning's drawing followed the issuance of precepts Monday afternoon at a brief session of court for the selection of 48 petit and 24 grand jurors for service next month. The grand jurors are to report for duty at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, November 6, while the petit jurors will not be needed until the first day of the regular session, Monday, November 9.

Three local men were selected for service on the grand jury. They are Edward Little and J. Calvin Nau of the first ward and J. Allen Holtzworth of the second ward.

Nine Gettysburg men are named for petit jury service. They are: John Colestock, H. T. Stauffer, Charles E. Harr, Dr. E. D. Hudson and J. Price Oyer, of the first ward; G. Earl Thompson and Charles J. Myers, of the second ward, and Samuel Rhine and C. Ray Rupp, of the third ward.

The grand jury list, including the names of three women, in addition to the local men listed above, follows: E. K. Hykes, Huntington township; John E. Frey, Hamilton township; Mabel Gettler, Littlestown; Harry L. Trostle, Littlestown; James G. Straley, Mount Joy township; Clarence King, Latimore township; Emory D. Harner, McSherrystown; Cleon Nary, Franklin township; Mrs. Kathryn Meckley, Berwick township; Edward Taubinghaugh, Straban township.

Dallas W. Shriver, Littlestown; Paul Spangler, Straban township; Howard G. Blocher, Littlestown; W. L. Scott, Freedom township; E. E. Cashman, New Oxford; Warren Harner, Littlestown; Miss Alice Sheely, Franklin township; George Ruhlman, Sr., Huntington township; Webster Hull, Franklin township; W. P. Slaybaugh, Biglerville, and E. R. Miller, Mt. Pleasant township.

Five women are on the petit jury list that follows with the names of Gettysburgians omitted: Allen Walker, Mount Joy township; P. X. Gehring, Mt. Pleasant township; Clair J. Meckley, Hamilton township; Charles E. Eisenhart, Hamilton township; John P. Myers, Reading township; Mrs. Quintin Dear-dorff, Franklin township; Ruben Slothour, Hamilton township; Delphus Sterner, Hamilton township; Robert D. Myers, Straban township; C. E. Raffensperger, Biglerville; Jacob Peters, Tyrone township; Elsie Geiselman, Cumberland township; Cleason Smith, East Berlin.

The judges were Mrs. Jacob Stoner and Mrs. Allan Knouse.

FIVE SPEEDERS ARE ARRESTED

Five motorists were nabbed Monday on the Lincoln highway west of here by highway patrolmen from the local substation for speeding. The informations were laid before Justice of the Peace Charles F. Redding, Cumberland township.

The defendants were: Raymond J. Baker, Hanover, 66 miles an hour; Stanley L. Gelsinger, Greencastle, 56 miles an hour; Louis Gibas, Detroit, Michigan, 65 miles an hour; David Owens, Van Wert, Ohio, 62 miles an hour; and Martin G. Howard, Watsontown, Pa., 40 miles an hour with a truck.

Gelsinger was committed to the county jail in default of payment of $10 fine and costs. Out-of-state men paid fines of $10 and costs each and the others will receive copies of the information laid against them.

OFFICERS OF 2 LEGION POSTS ARE INSTALLED

Gettysburg and Biglerville Legionnaires Participate in Meeting.

The regular semi-monthly meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post 292 of the American Legion was held Monday evening in the post rooms. Seventy members were in attendance. Frank Seacrist, past commander, presided until after the installation of officers when Howard W. Sheffer, newly elected commander, took charge.

District Commander Samuel Serff, of Hanover, was in charge of the installation of the following officers: Commander, Howard W. Sheffer; first vice commander, Horace E. Smiley; second vice commander, LeRoy H. Winebrenner; adjutant, Edgar A. Moser; finance officer, Albert Cardenti; chaplain, the Rev. Ludwig Mortensen; historian, Miss Mary Grove, and sergeant-at-arms, Roy Mackley.

The following officers of the Biglerville post were installed at the same time: Commander, Stanton House; adjutant, Robert Eicholtz, and service officer, Paul Diehl.

Two New Members
John G. Zeigler and Thomas R. Enoch were elected into membership of the local post.

Members of the post were invited to attend the installation of the officers of the Littlestown organization on Thursday, October 15, which will be in charge of the district deputy.

Department Commander Kress will be the guest of the Gettysburg post on Thursday, October 29. All posts of the 22nd and 18th districts have been invited to attend.

The past commander's jewel was awarded Mr. Seacrist by Commander Sheffer.

Following the meeting an oyster supper was served by the house committee.

Twin Brothers Given 30 Days for Vagrancy

Bert Williams and Garfield Williams, aged about 55 years, twin brothers with no fixed address, were arrested Monday afternoon by Officer Chester M. Spence, of the borough police on vagrancy charges. The informations were signed by the officer before Justice of the Peace John H. Baschore, who sentenced each to the county jail for a 30-day period—the sentence prescribed by law for vagrants.

TO FORM COMMITTEE

Adams County Republican Chairman G. R. Thompson has announced that an organization meeting will be held for young republicans of the county Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at party headquarters, Baltimore street. A young republican county committee is to be formed. The state committeemen for this county are Fred G. Pfeffer, Francis J. Worley, Lucille Thomas and Eileen Byers. Interested persons have been invited to attend.

ONE CENT TO BE ADDED TO MILK COST PER QUART

Retail Price Increase Expected to Become Effective on Monday.

FARMER GETS MORE REVENUE

Gettysburgians will pay 11 cents a quart for milk now retailing at 10 cents after next Monday if an order issued by the state milk control board at Harrisburg Monday is carried into effect.

Official notice of the new order was expected Monday afternoon or Wednesday by local retailers, who say that under the order the increase in price must be passed along to the farmer, who will receive from 40 to 45 cents more per hundred for his raw milk.

(By the Associated Press)
Harrisburg, Oct. 6.—The Milk Control board Monday raised the retail price of milk a cent per quart above the prevailing rate throughout Pennsylvania except in the Harrisburg area, where it fixed a two-cent jump.

The increased prices, to become effective Monday, were designed "to afford some protection to the farmer against an average increase of 25 per cent in the cost of producing milk," the board said.

Practically all the increase in the price to consumers, the board added, will go to the farmers. In the Philadelphia area, "the farmer gets considerably more than the increase paid by the consumer," it explained, adding the additional cent will be given producers in Johnstown, Scranton and Pottsville.

The new prices were based on testimony at a series of hearings. Producers contended an increase was (Continued on Page Two)

18 Bushels of Wheat Are Reported Stolen

State police here are investigating the theft of nine bags of wheat, containing about 18 bushels of the grain, from the Jenkins farm, now owned by the Farmers' state bank of McSherrystown, in Mt. Pleasant township.

The theft adds to the list of cases in which small amounts of wheat have been stolen in many parts of the county.

HOSPITAL REPORT

Mrs. Robert Hartman, Biglerville, and Donald Rouzer, Guernsey, were admitted to the Annie M. Warner hospital Monday afternoon where they submitted to operations for acute appendicitis.

Lester Geiman, West Middle street, who received a fracture of the skull in an automobile accident while returning to Gettysburg from the South Mountain fair 19 days ago, was discharged today. Others who left the institution were Oscar Basehoar, Gettysburg R. D., and Betty Ann Kepner, Orrtanna, R. D.

PROPERTY TRANSFER

One property transfer was entered to record at the office of the register and recorder today. The deed was given by C. J. and Sallie E. Weidner, Latimore township, to Lloyd A. and Maudella M. Decker, Latimore township, for a tract in Latimore township.

WILL IS PROBATED

The will of John M. L. Bollinger, Mount Joy township, was entered to probate today at the office of the register and recorder. Jesse Crabbs, Hanover, is executor of the instrument which disposes of an estate worth $450 in personal property. There is no real estate.

ORTHOPEDIC MEETING

About 15 Adams countyans are expected to attend an orthopedic clinic to be held October 16 at the Chambersburg hospital by Dr. J. D. Donaldson, orthopedic surgeon at the Elizabethtown hospital.

Admits Taking Tools And Wheat in County

Joseph Kelly, 50, formerly of Johnstown, who was arrested Sunday evening by Trooper John Hochreiter and Deputy Sheriff Daniel J. Wolff on charges of breaking and entering and larceny, signed a plea of guilty to the charges at a hearing Monday afternoon before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer.

Police say Kelly admitted stealing 10 bushels of wheat from Camillo Kiesling, Cumberland township, and a quantity of tools from Mrs. Annie Bosak, Gettysburg R. 3. The prisoner took the officers to a section of woodland on the John March farm, Gettysburg R. 3, where he showed them where he had hidden the tools and wheat. The loot is to be returned to the owners.

Kelly was returned to the county jail for court.

FASHION SHOW, PLAYLETON 4-H CLUBS' PROGRAM

Exhibits of Sixteen
Clubs Also Part Of Annual Round-up.

The complete program for the annual round-up of girls' 4-H clubs in Adams county to be held Saturday morning and afternoon at the Gettysburg high school building was announced today by Miss Mary Louise Bradstock, county home economics extension representative. The 232 members of the 16 clubs in the county will participate in the day's activities.

From 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock club exhibits will be arranged and during the next two hours they will be judged by a committee of members of the various clubs. During the judging period games will be arranged for all those girls who are not participating in the judging and will be conducted by a 4-H club committee.

Club members will inspect the work of the other clubs from 11:30 until 12:30 o'clock when the lunch hour will begin.

Playlet in Afternoon

The schedule of activities for the afternoon begins at 1:30 o'clock when the meeting will be called to order by the chairman, Myrna Kreider, East Berlin. The club pledge will be led by Lena Coulson, York Springs, and Eva Jane Schwartz, Barlow, who were the Adams county delegates to the 4-H leadership school conducted during 4-H club week at Pennsylvania state college last summer.

Singing of "America the Beautiful" will be led by Beatrice Myers and Miss Bradstock will extend greetings to the club members. A playlet will be presented by the Junior 4-H club of Gettysburg after which the group will sing "4-H Will Shine Tonight."

Miss Mabel McDowell, clothing extension specialist from Pennsylvania State college, will give a talk on "4-H Club Work." Following that a fashion show will be presented by the members of all the school outfit and wardrobe clubs in the county led by Marie Berkhimer, East Berlin.

Formal presentation will be made of awards by Miss McDowell and local club leaders to those girls whose exhibits were selected for prizes at the morning judging session. The song "Follow the Gleam" will conclude the program.

Fred Pfeffer Is Elected to Council; Analyses of Water Received, Studied

Report Called Satisfactory With Exception of One Sample.

ATTACK WAY OF TREATING WATER

Town council received a long-awaited report Monday evening from the Wayne laboratories at Waynesboro on the results of chemical and bacteriological analyses of water taken from Gettysburg water company mains.

The results of the bacteriological examinations were listed as satisfactory with the exception of one sample taken on East Broadway, where "a positive presumptive test for b.coli was obtained." Council was told that b.coli are bacteria that are not harmful in themselves but indicate pollution bordering on typhoid infection in the water supply.

President Epley ordered H. M. Oyler, chairman of the water committee who had procured the samples, had the test made and presented the results to council, to report to George W. Naylor, manager of the Gettysburg water company, the findings of the test with regard to the b.coli and demand immediate steps to remove all danger of infection.

Six Tests Made

Six spigot tests were made for residual chlorine here, John J. Shank, of the Wayne laboratories, stated to council in a letter. Only one of the tests showed a satisfactory amount of chlorine in the water, the communication reported. The tests were taken at a total of six places on West Middle, Carlisle and York streets and Steinwehr avenue. Shank stated that an increase in the amount of chlorine in the water would remove the b.coli without any ill effects on the water consumer.

With regard to the test for chemical ingredients of the water the samples were found to be "satisfactory in all respects." The letter stated that there appears to be no unusual conditions in existence here as far as chemical content is concerned, but that final conclusions could not be reached without an extended sanitary survey.

Claim Right Treatment Missing

Council was told that the analysis by the Wayne laboratories showed that those samples tested indicated that a moderately hard water is being supplied here. Fault was found with the lack of scientific treatment of the water and the absence of a qualified person at the pumping station to supervise accurate and scientific treating of the water before it is pumped into the mains of the town. The "hit-or-miss" methods of (Continued on Page Two)

Water Co. Manager Describes Treatment

George W. Naylor, manager of the Gettysburg water company, said this afternoon that he believes it impossible that a positive test for b.coli could be found in Gettysburg water on a complete confirmation of the test.

"The water is treated regularly and as accurately as possible with chlorine at the treatment plant. We try to keep the chlorine content below the point where there would be offensive taste or odor and yet sufficient to kill bacteria that might be present. Our tests have not showed any trace of b.coli in Gettysburg water in the nearly three years that I have been here," he stated.

He pointed out the fact that the reported presence of the b.coli, in themselves harmless, was found in only one residence and not at other points tested, indicating a possibility of some contamination during the taking of samples or other handling of the water.

HAS SPINE INJURY

Frank Atchello, a Mt. St. Mary's college student, was brought to the Annie M. Warner hospital Monday evening for an X-ray examination of the spine. A fracture of a vertebra was revealed. He was hurt playing football.

Lee Hartman, Cashtown, submitted to an X-ray examination of the right arm at the hospital. The arm had been sprained.

SEEKS PATENT

Arnold E. Orner, of Bendersville, has made application for a patent on a vegetable slicer which is especially adapted for slicing potatoes in a form to be "French fried."

The new device is said to minimize the danger of an operator being cut and to be more economical in operation than other devices.

Law 'With Teeth' Council's Answer to 'Snake Petition'

Borough Solicitor to Prepare Ordinance to Prevent Harboring Importation or Releasing Dangerous Creatures In Gettysburg.

An ordinance "with teeth in it" is to be drawn up by Borough Solicitor Eugene V. Buleit at the direction of council to prevent the harboring, importation or releasing of snakes "and other loathsome and dangerous creatures in the borough of Gettysburg."

Town council took that action Monday evening after a petition, signed by scores of residents of the third ward, was read in which it was held that the health and safety of the signers are endangered by the presence of snakes "not native to this community."

After the petition had been read President Epley exhibited one of the Texas bullheads, a mottled brown reptile measuring about 15 inches. The snake was confined in a jar of alcohol and was passed about the council table for inspection.

The council president reported that he understands that snakes, skunks and other unpleasant animals are being harbored in the borough. Councilmen suggested ordinances to prevent the importation and compel the death and destruction or some other satisfactory form of disposition of snakes in the town.

Mr. Buleit then proposed that the matter be handled by licensing the keeping of snakes and other objectionable animals in the town and charging persons a heavy fee for such permits. He pointed out that an ordinance ordering the killing of all snakes in the borough would cause complications when a circus comes to town and might affect reptiles being used for scientific purposes at the college or elsewhere. In the licensing, scientific laboratories could be exempt.

At its next meeting, council expects to adopt a measure making the cost of keeping snakes, skunks and other objectionable animals in town so expensive that the practice will be discouraged.

NEW VAULT DOOR BOUGHT FOR $265

Commissioners Purchase
Equipment From York
Firm; Inspect Roads.

Adams county commissioners at their weekly session this morning purchased a new door from the York safe and lock company, of York, for the new vault that is to be constructed for the use of the clerk of the courts at the present location of the probation office. The door will cost $265.

The new equipment meets requirements of the national board of fire underwriters and has a four-hour resistance to fire and heat. The door will be built on an eight-inch frame, will be about four inches thick and will be insulated. It had originally been planned to use the door on the present clerk's vault but it was found that it would be unsuited for use on the new vault. O. H. Hostetter, Hanover, will begin work on the vault Wednesday morning.

This afternoon the commissioners were inspecting roads in the vicinity of Greenstone with William Bailey, state engineer. This morning they approved a resolution and Wednesday are expected to grant other resolutions covering damages on roads listed for improvement this fall by the state highway department.

All the commissioners attended the meeting.

BABY CLINIC WEDNESDAY

Miss Sylvia K. Johnson, state nurse for Adams county, announced today there will be a baby clinic Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Y. W. C. A., center square.

ADDRESSES LIONS

William Johnson, a blind student at Gettysburg college, was the guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Gettysburg Lions club in the Eagle hotel Monday evening. Mr. Johnson, who attended a school for the blind for two years, used as his subject, "Work of the Blind."

Council Discusses Use of Center Square by Buses

83 Businessmen Sign Petition Asking That Terminal Be Allowed to Remain; It Is Suggested That Site Near Center of Town Be Secured.

A petition signed by 83 businessmen, most of them doing business in center square or within a radius of one block of the square, asking that the Greyhound bus line be allowed to continue to use center square as a terminal point for its transcontinental buses, launched a lengthy discussion at the council session.

The matter was placed finally in the hands of the safety committee for study and for conference with Greyhound bus officials with a view to encouraging the bus company to secure a permanent terminal location near the center of town, but not on center square.

The petition pointed to financial benefits derived from the bus passengers who spend considerable time in central-town business places; the danger of having Gettysburg dropped as a terminal town in favor of York or Chambersburg; the fact that the bus company gives employments are being harbored in the borough. Councilmen suggested ordinances to prevent the importation and compel the death and destruction or some other satisfactory form of disposition of snakes in the town.

Mr. Buleit then proposed that the matter be handled by licensing the keeping of snakes and other objectionable animals in the town and charging persons a heavy fee for such permits. He pointed out that an ordinance ordering the killing of all snakes in the borough would cause complications when a circus comes to town and might affect reptiles being used for scientific purposes at the college or elsewhere. In the licensing, scientific laboratories could be exempt.

At its next meeting, council expects to adopt a measure making the cost of keeping snakes, skunks and other objectionable animals in town so expensive that the practice will be discouraged.

COURT NAMES ROAD VIEWERS

Action Follows Petition From 23 Germany Township Residents; Grant Bell Divorce.

Fred S. Reese, president judge of the courts of Cumberland county, presided at a 40-minute session of Adams county court here Monday afternoon while Judge W. C. Sheely conducted a regular quarter session of court in Fulton county. Associate Judge John C. Bream also was on the bench.

Judge Reese appointed a board of viewers to examine a section of road in Germany township leading from St. John's church to the Slate Ridge school house in response to a petition signed by 23 taxpayers of the township asking that a public road be laid out over that course. The court named LeRoy H. Winebrenner, W. David Sheely and E. V. Buleit, Esq., to the board.

Charles Laughman, Berwick township, who had been sentenced to serve 90 days on a drunken driving charge on August 29 was placed on parole for one year with instructions to pay the costs within six months. The parole order was signed by Judge Sheely.

A decree in divorce was handed down in the case of Robert F. Bell, Straban township, vs. Maude E. Bell. The decree will be effective upon the payment of costs.

A libel in divorce was filed in court Monday afternoon by John P. Butt, Esq., in an action that has been instituted by Ethel L. (Oyler) Pierce, Gettysburg, vs. Raymond Pierce. The libel states that the couple was married May 18, 1934, and charges that the husband deserted the following June 18. Mrs. Pierce also alleges indignities to the person. The libel was made returnable November 9 by Judge Reese.

Precepts for the selection of grand and petit juries were handed down. Court adjourned at 2:45 o'clock until October 19 at 10 o'clock in the morning.

New Member to Fill
Unexpired Bender Term; Vote Is Unanimous.

ORDER BRIDGE OVER TIBER

On the third election held in as many months in an effort to fill the vacancy on town council caused by the resignation of Councilman Horace L. Bender, in August, Fred G. Pfeffer, 261 Baltimore street, was elected unanimously to the post Monday evening.

Pfeffer, it is understood, will accept the office and will assume Bender's positions as chairman of the sewer committee and member of the light and finance committees for the 15 months remaining in Bender's unexpired term.

The election came late in the three-and-a-half-hour session after President C. W. Epley observed that he had read in the newspaper that J. E. Snyder, who defeated William Wavell last month by a vote of five to three, is not going to accept the office and asked Perry J. Tawney, third ward councilman, for nominations.

Election Unanimous

Tawney nominated Pfeffer and the nomination was promptly seconded by H. M. Oyler, other councilmen from the third ward and nominator of J. E. Snyder and Frank B. Slonaker at previous ballottings. On a roll call vote Pfeffer was unanimously elected. The name of Harry E. Koch, Baltimore street, was not mentioned before council although it had been rumored that he would be offered the post. Koch, a former councilman, had indicated he would accept but declared he was not a candidate for the office.

After some discussion it was decided that a bridge shall be built over the Tiber on the extension of East Water street that is now being constructed, instead of placing a fording as is provided at present in the WPA project. Leroy H. Winebrenner, borough engineer, stated that the materials for the fording would cost the borough about $50 to $75 under the present arrangement and that the construction of a wooden bridge 20 feet wide and 16 feet long would require an expenditure for materials of between $600 and $700. A wooden bridge of the type described would last about 20 years and could be replaced with steel and concrete at any time.

Change in Plans Permitted

Mr. Winebrenner stated that he was informed that the WPA offices will allow a change in the project plans to permit the erection of the bridge. Council directed that a formal request be sent in writing to the WPA asking the change. No (Continued on Page Two)

Describes Armament Situation in Europe

Dr. Thomas L. Cline, head of the department of English at Gettysburg college, told the Gettysburg Rotary club Monday evening of experiences and observations on his European tour last summer. He mentioned particularly the manner in which the armaments of the countries on the continent are being built up.

Thirty-five members attended, with President J. Price Oyer presiding. Next week the program will be in charge of the committee on aims and objects, of which J. I. Burgoon is chairman.

O. O. I. A. GROUP TO MEET

The Booster association for the middle district of Pennsylvania will meet next Monday evening with the Battlefield council of the Order of Independent Americans in the lodge rooms, Baltimore street. The meeting will be held in connection with the weekly session of the local lodge at 7 o'clock.

ACCEPTS POSITION

John W. Bigham, formerly engaged in the insurance business in Spain, where he was president of the American Chamber of Commerce, has accepted a position with the commercial credit company in Philadelphia. Mr. Bigham had been connected with the Baltimore offices of the same concern before going to Spain a number of years ago.

HELD FOR COURT

Huber Pittenturf, Gettysburg, was given a hearing this afternoon at 2 o'clock before Justice of the Peace John C. Shealer on a charge of desertion and non-support brought by his wife. He was held for court and was to be returned to jail unless he furnished $300 bail for his appearance in November court.

FRED PFEFFER IS ELECTED TO TOWN COUNCIL

mention was made of placing a bridge on the Fourth street crossing of the Tiber.

Continuing their efforts to secure some revenue from the borough market in the Legion building, council directed that an advertisement be run for six consecutive insertions in the "Women's Wear Daily" offering the quarters for a clothing factory of some sort. Secretary Ross R. Myers read the advertising rates from the publication that he had secured at council's instructions last month.

Traffic matters came up for brief discussion by President Epley who referred to two letters on the traffic problem directed to public officials here and published in The Gettysburg Times last week. Mr. Epley said it was his understanding that the town council in Gettysburg were to be given a friendly warning and should receive courteous treatment at the hands of the police. "I did that when I was acting burgess and fined only one or two out-of-town drivers," he stated. He suggested that the safety committee confer with Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmit and have him "tell the cops to keep their eyes on local persons who double park, park over white lines, ignore stop signs and drive recklessly through school zones."

The highway committee was instructed to investigate and make a report at the next meeting on conditions between East Broadway and East Lincoln avenue, where an ungraded alley is reported to be causing flooding of the property of Miles Klinefelter. Mr. Winebrenner stated that the flooding can be stopped either by placing a storm sewer in the alley or by grading the alley so that surface water is carried off to the Harrisburg road. He said that over a period of years, the latter course of action would prove to be less expensive. He said that the alley can be graded so as not to interfere with entrance to present buildings along the southern side of the alley.

Urges Action on Health Law

President Epley asked Councilman Charles T. Jacobs for a report on the status of Dr. E. D. Hudson's proposals for milk, meat and food inspection here. Jacobs, chairman of the health committee, said that his group plans to go to Harrisburg and confer with department of agriculture authorities relative to enforcement of inspection regulations. President Epley urged prompt action in support of the recommendations of the board of health.

The borough engineer was told to investigate conditions in a storm sewer on Chambersburg street where unpleasant odors are noticeable, according to information given council. Some reports were received that there may be several properties in the vicinity using the storm sewer instead of the sanitary sewer and will be checked.

Local Firemen Go To Williamsport

First contingents of Gettysburg firemen left Gettysburg Monday and this morning for Williamsport where they will attend the annual state firemen's convention. Many others are planning to go to the convention city Wednesday and remain for the parade that concludes the convention Thursday afternoon. The Blue and Gray band will head the local company in the procession.

James B. Aumen, slated for reelection as treasurer of the state organization, went to Williamsport Sunday. He was accompanied by George A. McClellan, a former president of the county firemen's association. The election of officers will take place Wednesday.

The signers of the petition have on previous occasions complained to him about the buses being allowed to park in the square. He stated that the matter deserves careful consideration and promised to support the recommendation of J. Price Oyler, chairman of the safety committee. Then he called upon Mr. Oyler.

Comments Heard

The safety committee chairman stated he believes the buses need Gettysburg as much as Gettysburg needs them. He stated that he has seen buses parked three deep at the Mitchell restaurant section of the square and he pointed out that borough ordinances are being violated by that arrangement. "It's all out of order to have the buses in center square," he concluded. The majority of members of council commented on the matter. Some favored temporary arrangements for continued use of the square while efforts are made to locate a permanent terminal building near the center of town. Others opposed the plan to reserve a space in a section of the square for the buses and disallowed the prediction that the bus terminal may be moved from Gettysburg if accommodations are not made available here.

Councilmen were of the opinion that Greyhound bus officials should come here to discuss the matter. President Epley urged interested persons to communicate their views on the matter to members of the safety committee who now have the problem under advisement.

The Gettysburg women's league of Gettysburg college will meet next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Christ Lutheran church.

ANALYSES OF WATER SUPPLY HERE STUDIED

treatment were blamed for the varying condition of the water supplied to consumers here.

President Epley again pointed to the danger of pollution from the open reservoir on East Cemetery hill. Although the reservoir is not being used continuously excepting as a storage tank, Mr. Epley pointed out that in case of emergency by fire the water in the reservoir would be turned into the mains and pollute the entire water system. He recalled that council had ordered the reservoir cleaned this year and that the water company has not yet complied.

Expert opinion on the conditions at the treatment plant along Marsh creek and the system of treating the water for consumption here will be secured, council decided.

Critique Testing Method

Fault also was found with the system now being followed by the local utility in sending daily samples to leading for bacteriological tests. Instead of having tests made daily or twice daily within a short interval after the water sample is taken.

After the monthly report of George R. Martin, treasurer, had been received showing a balance of $45.81 in the general fund and $133.81 in the special fund, council voted to borrow $2,000 for the general and not more than $1,500 for the special fund from the First National bank, providing that institution grants the same rate of interest now being charged on loans from the Gettysburg national bank that total $16,000. One councilman voted against borrowing from the First national institution.

Department Expenditures

The treasurer's report listed expenditures for the month by departments as follows: Highway, $525.57; safety, $644.90; finance, $16,313.29; sewer, $466.27; health, $40.60; water, no expenses; light, $555.24; market, $81.38, and miscellaneous, $796.09. Receipts for the month were placed at $2,542.87 and were added to the balance of $16,926.28.

Councilman Tawney proposed that an effort be made to dispose of the machinery and other equipment, that was in the borough building on Race Horse alley, the former Peters' cement company building. It was suggested that an inventory be taken of the contents and disposal made to the best advantage.

Council was told that the Metropolitan Edison company will move the light pole at the North Stratton street intersection of Race Horse alley and several other poles that are not satisfactorily placed in several other places in the borough.

$600 In Fines

Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmit presented his monthly report, giving total collections at $640.95 which he itemized as follows: Building permits, $5; sewer permits, 75 cents; digging permits, $2; guides' licenses, $2; peddlers permits, $3; fines from the office of Justice of the Peace John C. Shearer, $330; fines from the office of John H. Baschore, $270, and roller service, $28.20.

After presenting his monthly report on expenditures in the highway department, Councilman William E. Biddle, chairman of the highway committee, asked the other members to make a survey of these borough streets this evening to determine whether they needed repairs: Stevens, Mummaburg, Franklin, Third and Fourth streets. Several members of council expressed the opinion that the streets that have already been listed for surfacing will be all that can be handled this fall and final arrangements for the inspection trip was not made.

Pavements Ordered Laid

On the basis of information in Mr. Biddle's report, council instructed the secretary to mail to Dr. J. McCrea Dickson and the administrator of the Winter estate to lay pavements on South Washington street at West Middle and along the north side of East Middle street.

James Howe, York street, came before council with the statement that he is willing to fix the curb in front of his home but will not lower the pavement which he claims was laid according to grade given by the borough surveyor in 1906. Mr. Winebrenner, borough engineer, stated that it is the hazardous condition of the pavement in front of the Howe and adjoining properties that gives council chief concern about its responsibility in case anyone should be hurt by a fall on the bad sections of pavement. After a long discussion the matter was turned over to the highway committee for investigation.

Mr. Howe and other residents of York street between Third street and the Lincoln school building had been notified to place new pavements.

President C. W. Epley presided with Councilmen Charles T. Jacobs, H. M. Oyler, William H. Scott, J. P. Oyler, William E. Biddle, Ray M. Hoffman and Perry J. Tawney in attendance. Other borough officials present were Eugene V. Bullett, Esq., borough solicitor; Treasurer George R. Martin, Secretary Ross R. Myers, Engineer Leroy H. Winebrenner and Burgess Wilbur J. Stallsmit who left early in the meeting because of illness.

necessary to offset higher costs of feed resulting from the western drought.

Governor Earle signed the order. The law provides orders must be issued at least six days before becoming effective. "The fact is, that the consumer does not pay an additional cent for all milk. A considerable quantity is sold in pints and half-pints on which there is no increase in price, and a still larger amount is sold at wholesale on which the increase is one-half cent or less. Therefore, the dealer receives 38 cents or perhaps less from the consumer. All of which is passed back to the producer," the control board members said.

3 Coal Truckers Are Sentenced to York Jail

The Wrong Murderer

By HUGH CLEVLEY

SYNOPSIS: Lee-Ramsden, guardian of Ruth Fraser, had engaged Ambrose Lawson and his gang of kidnappers to make away with his ward. But Terence Mahony, much to everybody's annoyance, rescues Ruth, who returns the favor by providing Terence a false alibi against a murder he did not commit. Terence is on his way home from telling Lee-Ramsden things he should not have told him when he meets a shabby individual who claims to have known him in China. Terence does not suspect Lee-Ramsden; he knows Lawson is a crook but can't prove it.

Chapter 20

TERENCE TRAPPED

"Have you still got the note?" asked Mahony of the shabby man.

"Yes, I think so."

The shabby man fumbled in a breast pocket and produced a crumpled envelope.

"Here it is. I'm supposed to deliver it at ten tonight if I want that job, but I'm not taking any. I'd rather pick pockets or try my hand at a cat burglary."

Mahony considered for a moment. He looked the shabby man up and down.

"I'll give you a fiver for that note," he said.

"What . . ." exclaimed Milson. "But . . . surely you're not thinking of trying for that job, are you?"

Mahony did not answer the question.

"Do you want that fiver?" he asked.

Milson shrugged his shoulders.

"Of course I want the fiver; I always want fivers," he remarked. "And if you don't mind taking a job like that, I suppose that's your funeral. Here you are; deliver it to Mr. Brown, 137 Jamaica Road, Pennycuik, at ten tonight. And good luck to you."

Mahony handed over the fiver and received the note. He declined Milson's urgent invitation to come somewhere and have a drink, and left him.

When Mahony was out of sight, Milson entered the nearest telephone-box. The man he telephoned was Ambrose Lawson.

"He fell for it all right," he stated. "That was all he said. Then he rang off."

Milson was not altogether right in saying that Mahony had fallen for it. At the beginning of their conversation Mahony had been ready to believe that he might have met Milson in the Shanghai Bar and forgotten meeting him.

Then there had come a little discrepancy in Milson's story—the mention of Kosoff. Mahony had never known Kosoff in Shanghai. But he had mentioned the name of Shultz as a dope trafficker at the Little's that morning. And the fact that he had been a newspaper correspondent in China might easily be known to Lawson; Billy Ross might have mentioned it.

It occurred to Mahony that Lawson had put together all he knew about Mahony's career in China to try to lure him into a trap.

Mahony intended to walk into the trap, not blind and unaware, but with his eyes open, expecting trouble and ready for it. One precaution only he took; he wrote a note to Lee-Ramsden telling him what he proposed doing, and the address he was going to.

That note would reach Lee-Ramsden by the first post in the morning, and Mahony asked Lee-Ramsden to communicate with Inspector Kennedy if he should not ring him up before eleven the same morning.

Just before ten that night Mahony rapped at the door of 137 Jamaica road, which was a tall, dingy, tumble-down house, in a row of dingy tumble-down houses. The door was opened by a bent, shriveled old man who looked up at Mahony out of bleary eyes. Mahony handed him the note.

"I was told to bring this here at ten tonight," he said.

The old man took the note and looked at Mahony suspiciously.

"Wait here a minute," he said.

He closed the front door. Mahony waited. After about half a minute the front door opened again and the old man beckoned Mahony inside. His manner this time was more civil and conciliating.

"Mr. Brown says you're to come in and wait in his room," he said. "He won't keep you longer than he can help."

Mahony's hand was in his coat pocket; he was ready for anything that might happen. But though he strained his ears to hear the slightest sound near him he could hear nothing except his own footsteps and those of the old man; the house seemed surprisingly silent, almost deserted.

Cautiously, every sense on the alert, he followed the old man up a dark, tumble-down staircase to a landing. The old man opened the door of a room.

"Wait in here," said the old man. "Mr. Brown said you were to make yourself quite at home, and 'elp yourself to anything you want."

He ushered Mahony into a room that, by contrast with the rest of the house, was surprisingly well appointed and comfortable. The wallpaper was clean and fresh; there were a couple of comfortable armchairs, a solid-looking roll-top desk, a good thick carpet, and on a mahogany table were whisky, soda, glasses, and a box of cigarettes.

"Ave a drink or a smoke if you feel like it," said the old man, and he went out, closing the door after him. Mahony heard his slow footsteps going down the stairs.

Very puzzled, Mahony glanced round the room. So far as he could see, he appeared to be quite safe for the moment; the window was inaccessible from the road, the door was closed, there were no apertures or ventilators in the wall through which he could be shot at. He had no doubt that he had now walked into the trap prepared for him, but what was the nature of the trap? Was it in the drink or the cigarettes on the table?

Everything was very quiet except for the slow tick-tock, tick-tock of a clock on one of the walls of the room. Minutes drag by very slowly when a man's nerves are strained and alert, waiting for something to happen. Five minutes passed, ten minutes passed, and still the house remained quite quiet.

Mahony smoked; he walked up and down the room; he glanced cautiously at the articles on the desk. At last, very softly, he pulled at one of the drawers.

It opened, and inside were a number of thin paper packets. One of the packets had burst slightly at one end, and from it had spilled a little shiny, white powder. Mahony wetted one finger slightly, and tasted a tiny particle of the powder. The cold, numb sensation on the end of his tongue told him instantly what the powder was. It was cocaine.

The silence of the house was suddenly broken. From down below at the front door came a sound of banging, and then of men's rough voices in the hall. Mahony closed the drawer swiftly. He had no doubt that whatever was going to happen would happen now, and he was ready and waiting for it.

There was a sound of footsteps on the stairs leading up to the room. Mahony stood leaning back against the mantelpiece in an easy attitude, one hand in the pocket of his coat. The door of the room was flung violently open and a man stepped in.

He was a very large man, and very ugly. A shabby cap, pulled down at an angle over one eye, entirely failed to conceal his shock of untidy red hair. His brow was low; his eyes were small and deep-set, his lower jaw was underhung like that of a bulldog.

He closed the door deliberately behind him and stood in front of it scowling at Mahony, a huge, menacing figure.

"Good evenin' to ye, Mr. Brown," he said with a kind of savage politeness. "I just called in for me money."

"I'm not Mr. Brown," replied Mahony.

"Are ye not so?" said the man.

He took a pace forward suddenly and brought his huge right fist down with a loud crack into the palm of his left hand.

"What in hell do I care what ye're after calling yourself tonight?" he roared ferociously. "Isn't it enough trouble ye're after causing me, with the cops looking for me and all, without standin' there arguin' the toss about what name ye'd be passin' by? Give me me fifty quid and let me go—or have I got to squeeze the money out of you with me bare hands?"

It was obvious that he was in a real Irish temper; nothing would have pleased him better than a fight. The last thing Mahony wanted was a fight with a stranger at that moment.

"Don't be a damned fool," he said sharply. "I've told you I'm not Mr. Brown. I'm waiting for him myself."

The Irishman made a gesture of disgust.

"Do you think you'll wiggle out of paying me that way, ye twisting cluricaun?" he demanded angrily. "Didn't I have the tip that you'd be here at ten tonight? Wasn't you seen to come in at ten? Didn't the old fellow below tell me you was here?"

FREDERICK COUNTY

WALKATHON MANAGER HELD FOR COURT

Frederick.—Ray C. Alvis, manager of the walkathon which has been operating near McCurdy field for more than a month, early Saturday afternoon was released on $1,500 bond in circuit court on an indictment returned by the September grand jury, charging him with maintaining a nuisance and taking money under false pretenses.

WASHINGTON COUNTY

PHYSICIAN DIES

Hagerstown.—Dr. I. Herbert Tobias, widely known Hancock physician, died Friday morning at 7 o'clock at the Washington county hospital, of complications, aged 61 years.

STOLEN GOODS ARE LOCATED

Hagerstown.—The carpet sweeper, bed spreads and sheets Detective William Peters recovered from a 21-year-old youth on West Church street on Thursday, were identified here Friday as having been stolen, officers said.

The sweeper was identified as having been taken from 37 South Prospect street and the bed clothing was identified by Miss Myrtle Moats, first block West Antietam street.

FRANKLIN COUNTY

FRAME BARN IS DESTROYED IN FIRE

Chambersburg.—A frame bank barn on the farm of George Stouffer, near Guiltner's church, Greencastle R. 1, was destroyed by fire between 9 and 10 o'clock Friday night. Hay, straw and grain, farm tools and a cornplanter were burned.

The Stouffers, who had been away part of the evening, returned about 9 o'clock, and shortly after retiring heard their dogs barking. They investigated and discovered the barn on fire. A bucket brigade was formed but the flames had gained headway.

EDUCATION GROUP TO MEET FRIDAY

Chambersburg.—Scotland school will be host at the opening meeting of the year of the Franklin County Education association at 7:30 p. m. Friday, October 9.

Miss Mary McAndrews, president of the Pennsylvania State Education association, will deliver the address on "Advancing the Interests of Education."

ACROBATIC THIEF ROBS CIRCUS TRAIN OF $1,900

Houston, Texas, Oct. 6 (AP).—The show season's savings of 25 circus electricians were taken in a spectacular robbery of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus train between Corpus Christi and Houston early Sunday.

The robber apparently swung on the side of the speeding train and bored through the side of a heavy wagon to the money box inside, circus officials said. A total of $1,900 in cash was taken.

While the train sped 60 miles an hour, the robber hung onto the steel hooks used for racking tentpoles and bored through the side of the wagon into the money box, circus officials believed.

Psychologist Takes Excursion Into Borderlines of Insanity

Sir Joseph Barcroft Tells Yale Audience About Experiments in Which Cold Felt Warm and Conventional Ideas of Modesty Disappeared.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 6.—By chilling his body to the early stages of freezing, Sir Joseph Barcroft, one of the world's foremost physiologists, told a Yale audience Monday he took a personal excursion into the borderland of insanity.

He was able to pass beyond the "censorship" the mind's self-imposed standards for safety. Cold felt deliciously warm. Conventional ideas of modesty disappeared, he said.

In still another "borderland excursion," made by inhaling carbon dioxide, he passed into a sort of "land of errors," a condition when mistakes seemed absolutely correct.

The experiments described show effects on the mind of changes in the blood stream. He tried chilling twice, naked in a freezing room.

"In each," he said, "there was a moment when my whole mental outlook altered. As I lay in the cold room I had been shivering and my limbs had been fixed in a sort of effort to huddle up, and I had been very conscious of the cold."

"Then a moment came when I stretched out my legs; the sense of coldness passed away."

The nerve censorship had let down. He explained how the nerves in fighting cold draw the blood supply away from the surface. When the censorship let go, the warm blood rushed to the chilled exterior. "I was conscious of other rever-sions of mental state," he added. "There came a general change in mental attitude. The natural apprehension lest some person alien to the experiment should enter the room and find me quite unclad disappeared—just as fixation was changed to extension, so natural modesty was changed to—well, I don't know what."

"Clearly one should be cautious about taking these liberties with one's mind, and this is the point, the higher parts of the central nervous system were the first things to suffer."

Sir Joseph also inhaled for about 20 minutes a seven to eight per cent mixture of air and carbon dioxide, the gas exhaled in breathing. A little carbon dioxide is necessary for life.

"I took certain samples of my own breath in the chamber at intervals," he said, "which required some nicety of manipulation, the correct turning of taps and so forth. The analysis proved that there had been errors of manipulation in the last two samples."

"Now the interesting point is that I could have gone into a court of law and sworn that at least one of the two was correctly taken."

J. W. C. O'Neal made some remarks on the insane hospitals of England and Scotland. Dr. Charles Horner was appointed to prepare a paper on "Placenta Praeata" to be read before the society on the second Tuesday on November.

The Hanover Fair last week was largely attended. Thursday was the "big day," the crowd being estimated at from 12,000 to 15,000. Penrose Myers and company, of this place, took eleven out of sixteen first premiums on various classes of chickens exhibited by them.

REPRESENTS COLLEGE AT FRATERNITY ASSEMBLY

George F. Harkins, son of Mrs.
Jennie Harkins and the late John Harkins, formerly of Harrisburg, was recently appointed to represent Gettysburg college chapter with three other students at the national general assembly of Kappa Phi Kappa in Birmingham, Alabama, on October 22, 23 and 24.

Kappa Phi Kappa is a national professional education fraternity.
The Gettysburg chapter was the third to be installed by the national organization which now numbers forty-seven active chapters. Har-kins, who is a member of the senior class, is vice-president of the Gettysburg chapter.

INDIAN HEIRESS FINDS HUSBAND TOO COSTLY

Los Angeles, Oct. 6 (AP).—Marriage was an expensive business to Mrs. Helen Tall Chief Robertson, she testified Friday.

The Indian oil heiress was granted a divorce from Wesley Robertson, who she said was the son of a Cherokee Indian chief.

"He was always demanding money from me," she testified, "and every time I refused he would leave home for a while and then come back and make up. But the last time he said he wouldn't return to me unless I gave him $5,000."

CHILD DISCUSSES WEATHER
On a pleasant summer day
In my sun suit I can play
And I race about and run
Never bothered by the sun.

In my leggings and my coat
And a muffler round my throat
Just as warm as I can be Winter never bothers me.

When the rain comes pit-a-pat
In my rubber coat and hat
I go splashing up and down
Just the happiest child in town.

So it really seems to me
If you're dressed as you should be
And can get outdoors and run
Any sort of weather's fun.

WORRY

Used to worry when she cried:
Used to tremble when she fell.
Many an anxious sigh we sighed
When she wasn't feeling well.
Now to lovely girlhood we are.
Worried still I find we are.
Oh, so fast the years have flown!
Janet wants to drive the car.

Used to worry years ago
When she first began to walk;
Worried when we thought her slow
Learning little words to talk.
Later hoped our fears were o'er,
Done with tumble, jolt and jar.
Now we're worrying more and more.
Janet wants to drive the car.

Worried over roller skates,
Bicycle we viewed with dread.
Must it be that fear awaits
Always as we move ahead?
She's come through those early years
Happily without a scar.
Now a greater risk appears.
Janet wants to drive the car!

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

NONE of us wish for the world to go backward, but we do wish for it to go better! In this age of speed, and more speed, "wars and rumors of wars," some of us long for a return to much that the good old "horse and buggy" days gave us with such richness.

Then we took time to play, to laugh, and to think. The home was a thing divine. Work was a thing expected and out of which grew character and a happy success. The family altar planted something permanent in every youth's heart. The "cocktail hour" was unknown then! But people were happy and endured hardship and sorrow without complaint because they were expected as a part of life. Self-respect and self-control were household necessities.

Harvard University had its 300th celebration recently. A group of distinguished men were appointed to select 50 of its greatest graduates for its Hall of Fame. It was a tough job. Most of them had to be selected from the "horse and buggy days!" And most of them are familiar to every school-boy, in name and achievement. Four of them became President of the United States.

Henry Ford has, for years, been gathering up the relics of those wonderful days and preserving them in a great museum at Dearborn, Michigan, which covers acres of floor space, just so the future generations may look back, observe, and gain from such a precious heritage. He saw something bigger and more useful to be constructed from those days, and he has done it, but he wishes that indomitable spirit that was theirs, to be carried on. This museum and his Edison institute alone will endear him and give to him lasting fame.

The horse and buggy days placed a premium upon work, honesty, unselfish ambition and behavior. The racketeer and bootlegger made himself scarce and was despised. The Charlie Ross kidnapping incident remained a classic of its sort all during those days.

It would be better for us all if we went back to those dear old horse and buggy days and tore a few sheets from their books of beauty, industry, and courage, and used them for text-sheets to guide us to a bigger and better life under changed conditions and under new skies.

lace vestee steal the spotlight from over-emphasized curves. See, too, the way those smart sleeves flare out to make one's wrist incredibly slender.
Dressy, in crepe or satin, as pictured, its tiny sketch below shows you the way to a less formal frock.
Here, a crisp pique vestee might be inserted in a version of sheer wool, giving one a frock for run-and-about occasions for this. Complete dia-

No charge for use of Funeral Parlors

October 5, 1936

Mr. John P. Butt,
Chairman, Adams County Democratic Committee, Gettysburg, Penna.
Dear Mr. Butt:—

In your published letter addressed to me you stated that Mr. Frank Knox had "cast insinuations, and what appears to be disparaging remarks relative to the security of our bank deposits and our insurance policies," and has, "declared that Pennsylvania bank deposits were not secure under the present Administration."

You asked me to tell you whether the bank deposits are safe, and you then said that if they are safe it is not consistent with good judgment for me to support Mr. Knox.

In the same careless manner in which the "High Command of the New Dealers," including Messrs. Tugwell, Hopkins, Ickes, Farley and Frankfurter and Madame Perkins have either carelessly or wilfully misconstrued the Constitution of the United States, which is the very bulwark of Democracy, in their abortive attempts to force upon us the nefarious NRA, the Agricultural Adjustment Act, the Guffey Coal Bill and others of the alphabetical experiments, so too are they making a futile effort to distort the statements made by Mr. Knox.

Colonel Knox said, in substance, that:

Because of the threat of inflation no savings account, no insurance policy is safe under the present Administration.

Colonel Knox urged, and we are earnestly urging removal of the "threats" which cause the element of danger to which he referred.

If a building be thoughtfully designed to avoid the weaknesses which time has developed in other buildings. If it be solidly based upon secure foundations, and if it be soundly and substantially constructed, then you and I, Mr. Butt, would unhesitatingly declare such building to be "safe."
So too, our banks are now safe.

If, however, a Tugwell, a Wallace, a Hopkins, Frankfurter, an Ickes, an Earle or a Perkins should obtain temporary possession of the basement of such building under solemn promise to guard safely the structure and then without consent of the owners and in violation of all promises and of safety rules and regulations, should convey into and keep in such basement tons of dynamite, a doubt as to the safety of the building would arise in the minds of both of us. That doubt is increased when we learn that such tenant intends to use that dynamite in conducting experiments in the basement and especially so when such tenant or tenants avow in the public press and show by their actions that such experiments are designed to over-throw the laws of nature; the law of supply and demand, the orderly production of crops and various tried and proven practices. When again we learn through bitter experience that such tenants have no knowledge of the danger of dynamite or of the care requisite to its safe handling; have no experience in its use or storage, then, Mr. Butt, our doubt as to the "safety" of the structure increases to a conviction of danger. I for one, Mr. Butt, under such conditions, would unhesitatingly pronounce that building, although basically sound, to be in danger; to be unsafe, until the threat of explosion is removed by throwing out those who caused the threat and created the dangerous condition, and by the removal of the dynamite.

That is what Colonel Knox meant when he said that our bank deposits, our insurance policies were not secure under the present Administration, because of the danger of the "New Deal" dynamite, which in violation of the pledges contained in the Democratic Platform and in violation of long established principles of the Democratic Party has been carried into the basement of our national, business and social structure by the New Deal tenants.

The "dynamite" is the combination of excessive taxes; "unprecedented governmental spending and waste;" stupendous deficits; unnecessary stirring up of class hatreds among our people; the repudiation of solemn pledges; efforts to overcome the law of supply and demand, the interference with the natural laws of production. These are the present dangers.
Inflation, a greater calamity, will follow if they be not removed. If inflation be permitted to come, the monetary obligations of the Government will fall in value and crash as did Germany's. When they fall the Government's guaranty of bank deposits will be worthless; the banks with their tremendous holdings of governmental

WIDE SELECTION ADDS TO BEAUTY OF TULIP BEDS

Planting Early and Late Varieties As- sures Impressive Display.

By CISELA GRIMM

(In the New York Herald Tribune)

One can hardly imagine a spring garden without tulips. They are the most showy of all the spring-flowering bulbs, for the blooms are large and available in so many bright and beautiful colors. By planting both early and late kinds an impressive showing may be had for many weeks. Gorgeous as the Darwin tulips are, it is a mistake to limit one's selection to them alone, when to other types will greatly extend the period of tulip enjoyment.

One should not overlook the early singles, which bloom in April before the display of the cottage, Darwin and breeder tulips. Although their habit of growth is low and stocky their blossoms are large and their colors brilliant. The variety Keizerskroon, bright scarlet edged with yellow, was much planted in the days when bedding in formal designs was popular. Nowadays, varieties less harsh in coloring, which harmonize better with the other flowers in the garden, are more in favor.

General de Wet Popular

General de Wet is one of the most popular varieties. It is a deep yellow flushed with orange and stippled with scarlet, a coloring unusually beautiful under artificial light. For this reason, it is popular for cutting and forcing as well as for garden planting. Moreover, it is delightfully fragrant. It is attractive planted with the blue phlox (Phlox divaricata) or with a carpet of yellow cowslips. It persists longer in the garden than any other variety.

Another variety of unusual coloring, but which does not bloom quite as early, is Le Reve, sometimes known as Hobbema. The color is soft old rose, flushed with buff, a blend both unusual and lovely. Massed with blue forget-me-nots near an early-flowering cherry, it forms one of the loveliest pictures of spring. Other varieties, such as Rising Sun (clear yellow), White Beauty, Pink Beauty, Couleur Cardinal (bright scarlet), and others which sometimes make the choice of varieties difficult, should be included in the garden planting to give tulip displays before the later Darwins and Cottage tulips have opened their buds.

The double early tulips have a charm all their own. They are not as graceful as the early singles, but are more prim and formal in appearance. They are suited for bordering paths in the formal garden, for massing about sundials or pots or planting in window boxes. Muriello, rose-pink flushed with white, Safrano or tea-rose, a saffron-yellow, and Schoonoord, which when open wide resembles a small, white peony, are among the best varieties. Double tulips last longer in bloom than the early singles.

New Race Developed

A new race of tulips, known as the triumph, has recently been developed by crossing the single early and the Darwins. They bloom about a week later than the single early and before the Darwins, and are available for bridging the gap between them. They are strong-growers, almost as tall as the Darwins. Algiba, a clear heliotrope, and Kansas, a white with a yellow center, are outstanding examples. The Mendel, another race produced by crossing the Darwins and an early strain of tulips known as the Duc von Tholl, bloom about ten days before the Darwins.

Close behind the triumph and the Mendel tulips, the tall, stately, late-flowering kinds, including the Cottage, Darwin and Breeder tulips open their buds. The Cottage variety may bloom a few days earlier and the Breeder a few days later than the Darwins, but as a general rule these three kinds may be planted together for garden effect. The blooms of the Cottage tulips are usually long and oval, many of them with gracefully reflexed petals. This group is rich in clear pinks and yellows and combinations and blends of these colors.

Variety of Color in Darwins

Every color except a clear, sky blue is found among the Darwins. Even yellow, which was for a long time missing, is found among the new Ideal Darwin tulips, a strain of Darwins unrivaled in size and brilliancy of its blooms. These tulips are ideal for planting in the flower border or in bays in the shrubbery planting. The finest effect is obtained when a few varieties are chosen and planted in drifts of at least twenty-five of a kind. In the small garden groups of ten or more among the perennials are very effective.

The beauty of a tulip planting is always enhanced if flowering shrubs and the early spring perennials are included. The common Spirea Vanhoutte will take on a new significance if a group of bright red tulips, such as City of Haarlem, are planted in front of it and edged with the hardy candytuft (Iberis sempervirens). The golden rose of China (Rosa hugonis) forms a pleasing background for lavender and purple Darwin tulips and the blue phlox (Phlox divaricata).

The Golden Rose of China also serves as an ideal background for the Breeder tulips, brightening their dark tones. Such colors as bronze, old gold, purple and maroon are typical of this class. Louis XIV, a deep purple flushed with bronze and edged with golden brown, is one of the best known of the Breeder tulips. It is most attractive when planted with yellow tulips, or the golden, daisy-like Leoparbane (Doronicum). The Basket-of-Gold (Alyssum saxatile), and yellow and brown pansies are stunning with any of the dark Breeder tulips.

WEDDINGS

Hahn-Flickinger

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Flickinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel H. Flickinger, Littlestown, and Paul Hahn, son of Charles Hahn, Taneytown, Maryland. The ceremony was performed August 31, 1935, at 12 o'clock noon, in the Methodist parsonage at Bath, New York, by the Rev. C. E. Sutton, in the presence of Mrs. Ada Smith and Mrs. Ralph W. Kelley. The ring ceremony of the Methodist church was used.

Following the ceremony the couple visited Niagara Falls, points in Canada and Watkins Glen.

Mrs. Hahn is employed as stenographer by the Keystone Cabinet company, Littlestown, and Mr. Hahn is employed by the Blue Ridge Rubber company, Taneytown, Maryland.

Hays-Laumaster

The marriage of Miss Ethel Laumaster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Laumaster, of York, and Oran Hays, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kent Hays, of York, was solemnized at 7 o'clock Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Richard Eisenhart, Baltimore street. The Rev. Spencer W. Augst, pastor of St. James' Lutheran church, officiated. The couple was attended by Mr. and Mrs. Eisenhart. They left Sunday on a honeymoon trip to Washington, D. C.

Harold Settle spent Saturday with Richard Settle, near Belmont.

FOR RAINY DAYS

Harrisburg (AP)—Youngsters at nearby Overview watch for automobile accidents on rainy days at a point where the highway curves sharply over a railroad bridge. Motor club officials said: "Watching for these accidents has come to be a habit with them. They are seldom, if ever, disappointed."

The highways department plans road changes to avoid the hazard.

RUPTURE

SHIELD EXPERT HERE

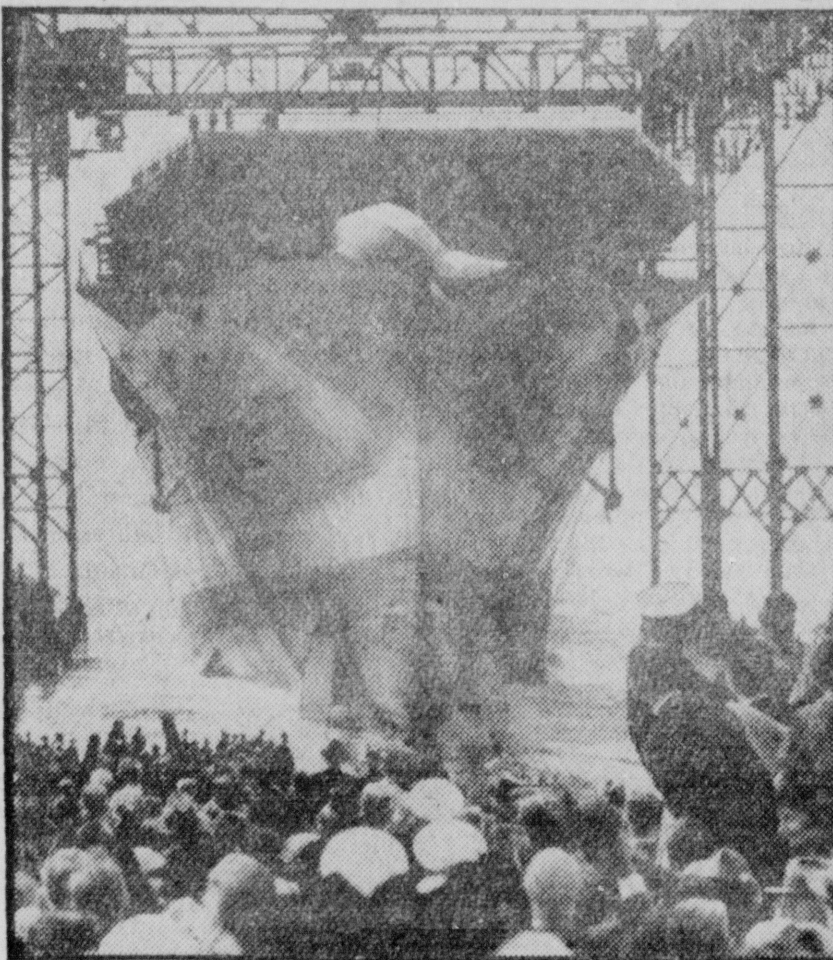

H. M. SHEVNAN, widely known expert of Chicago, will personally be at the Penn Harris Hotel, Harrisburg, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 7 and 8, from 9 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Mr. Shevnan says: The Zottic Shield is a tremendous improvement over all former methods, effecting immediate results. It will not only hold the rupture perfectly but increase the circulation, strengthens the weakened parts, thereby closes the opening in ten days on the average case, regardless of heavy lifting, straining or any position the body may assume no matter the size or location. A nationally known scientific method. No under straps or cumbersome arrangements and absolutely no medicines or medical treatments.

Mr. Shevnan will be glad to demonstrate without charge.

Add, 4441 N. RICHMOND ST., Chicago. For 15 years assistant to F. B. Seelye, famous rupture expert of Chicago.

PREMIER BANS MEETINGS OF RIVAL PARTIES

Leon Blum, of France, Curbs Demonstra- tions Leading to Riots.

Paris, Oct. 6 (AP)—The anxious government of Socialist Premier Leon Blum Monday banned all demonstrations that might cause trouble by action or reaction.

At the same time, cabinet leaders and Blum mapped a swift court fight to wipe out the French social party of Col. Francois de la Roquette, whose followers battled in the streets with communists over the week-end.

De la Roquette's followers promptly asked Roger Salengro, minister of the interior, whether he announced ban on demonstrations would be applied to communist meetings likely to cause "reactions" such as the social party's counter-demonstration against the communists Sunday.

Salengro Appeals to Public

In a communique, Salengro appealed to public opinion to back the government and said, "The interests of the entire country are at stake."

Salengro's order said: "The government is determined until further notice not to authorize in Paris and in the Paris region demonstrations or meetings susceptible of provoking hostile action and reaction and causing new agitation of public opinion."

Officials said this meant the government reserved for itself the right to ban "any or all" public meetings or demonstrations at the government's discretion.

Some followers of De la Roquette charged the ban would be used solely against them, while communists would be permitted to continue their demonstrations.

Minister Hits At De La Roquette

Officials said the government was "warning certain groups it planned to use the powers it already has to ban meetings which it considers might lead to trouble."

Interior Minister Salengro called Sunday's fighting "without gravity," but said it proved beyond doubt that De la Roquette's social party had "no similarity" with a mere political party.

The demonstration by De la Roquette's followers in opposition to the communist meeting, Salengro declared, "was organized quickly and secretly, necessarily indicating a hierarchy, discipline of military type, mobilization of groups, plans for transportation and concentrations on certain given points."

Radical Socialists in Warning The first indication of lessened support of the Blum government because of the rioting between communists and rightists came from Saone-et-Loire department, in the east of France.

Radical socialists of that district made their parliamentary support of the government contingent upon a check on "menaces directed by certain foreign elements against internal order," and assurances of "freedom to work and the rights of property and saving."

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC THEATRE

The deserts and rocky plains of New Mexico and Texas were used as a background by King Vidor in directing his historic film of the old southwest, "The Texas Rangers" coming Wednesday and Thursday to the Majestic theatre with Fred Mac-

Murray and Jack Oakie in leading roles. The picture, second made for Paramount by Vidor, immortalizes the band of men who made Texas safe for the pioneer settlers of the 1880's.

Combining a sweeping panoramic view of early Texas history with a romantic, action-filled story of high adventure and romance, "The Texas Rangers" is based on true records of the exploits of one of the world's most famous organizations of peace officers.

Jean Parker has the leading feminine role, appearing as the daughter of a Rangers unit which MacMurray and Oakie join. Lloyd Nolan is cast as a famous Texas "bad man" of the time, Sam McGee. Others heading the list of supporting actors include Edward Ellis, Bonnie Bartlett and a score of outstanding character players.

What is Your America all About?

You probably know every single fact in this advertisement. But each one is so simple and obvious that you may never think of it as concerning you every day

TO YOU, PERSONALLY, no more important facts than these have ever been written. They reach right down into the very roots of your own life...and your family's...and your future. To everyone they are as deep, as abiding, as encompassing as hunger, love, religion.

Our American plan of living is simple. Its ideal is the greatest good for the greatest number—and it works. You, and every one of your more than 127,000,000 fellow citizens, are members of a firm. No matter whether you are a doctor, lawyer, merchant, farmer, clerk or machinist...you—whether you know it or not—are a part owner of the United States, Inc.

Proof? Income tax figures show 85% of our national income goes to those of us who work for a living. And most of the remaining 15% goes to those who invest savings.

Our American plan of living is pleasant. You have exactly 168 hours a week to use as you want. An average week's work is 48 hours. That leaves 120 hours for sleep, play, hobbies.

Are We Well Off?

SO our American plan of living is the world's envy. No nation, or group, lives as well as we do. We work shorter hours; we have more leisure. We have more autos, radios, washing machines, reapers, sewing machines, refrigerators, telephones—comforts of home—than the rest of the world combined! Wages are higher per hour than in other countries...wages that continue to increase.

One American child in every five goes to high school; one out of 116 to college. This costs more than the school bill of all other nations combined. Why?

There are many reasons why we have a better life. All are important...worth keeping. But among the first causes come the ways we invest our time and money.

How a Business Starts

A MAN in Connecticut starts a small business in a shop ten feet square. In a year his shop is forty feet square...and four men help him. They, too, share in his industry, ability and profits.

The little business practices thrift, or in business terms, "creates a reserve." No one tells the owner how much he shall make, except the consumer. As the public buys, he makes money. Using this saved money, the tiny shop in ten years is an acre square. And the credit established is used to borrow money at the bank and expand more. Your America is on its way!

Through the constantly increasing employees of this factory grows a prosperous community—workers need food from farmers—the children need schools, family health requires protection; their teeth need attention. So hundreds of men, their families, merchants and doctors and dentists and farmers, in and near the town, share in the profits of this growing industry.

In California another chap starts a similar business about the same time. Both men make a new product. Both men trust to their own initiative for success. They both grow on merit.

And How a Business Grows

THE PRODUCTS of these two factories meet on the shopkeepers' shelves in every State. Thus competition—"the life of trade"—begins. The very nature and being of men fosters competition. Man never has and never will be able to stop it...any more than the urge for private ownership can be suppressed.

Inspired by competition, first one, then the other, improves his product. They both learn to make it faster, produce more cheaply, better. Demand for it increases. Hence each factory owner employs more fellow men. Each company grows. All—owner, workers, investor—work together; each doing his just share. All who work earn more money...build the security of a steady job and a chance to save for the future...gain more leisure, and increase their power to purchase.

Who benefits?

You do!

The two manufacturers and their fellow-workers do.

You benefit because the product rapidly becomes better and costs less. The worker, owners, and partners benefit because the spirit of unhampered competition caused them to make merchandise we, the public, wanted.

America's Foundation!

IN THIS is contained the essence of our American plan of living. And we are all bound up in it—whether we be maker, buyer or seller. It involves constant change, growth, development. It represents individual enterprise attending to the needs of everyday life, the wishes continually awakened by improvements, the desire fostered by higher notions of living.

The average man gets more from the American plan of living than the average person anywhere! Our plan has come nearer to removing poverty than any system yet devised. It provides the foundation for America!

To Sum It Up

WE have come far! We are a young nation—still growing. Continue, then, to look at America with the clear, keen vision of youth. The last depression served merely to bring into focus the fact that our plan can still be badly shaken and revive.

You...and only you...are the American plan of living. Under it you have independence—the greatest thing man can have. Believe in it, uphold it...as you believe in, and trust, yourself. You are what America is all about!

YOU ARE A STOCKHOLDER IN "THE UNITED STATES, INC."

You have a "part interest" in the American plan of living; your future welfare depends on its success. You will be interested, therefore, in a report of what it has done. No other enterprise on earth has ever made such a good report to its stockholders.

YOUR American Plan of Living

...has produced three times as much wealth as the whole world produced before 1776.

...has more than doubled our average wealth and income since 1900.

...has distributed wealth so widely that even in the midst of the depression there were more than 44,000,000 savings accounts with aggregate deposits exceeding $24,000,000,000.

Approximately 10,000,000 members of building and loan associations, with assets approaching $8,000,000,000...

approximately 121,000,000 life insurance policies in force for a face value of $108,885,000,000.

...has promoted an economic democracy in which about 12,000,000 persons are shareholders in business corporations...

one out of every seven factory workers is a shareholder in a company.

...has increased the number of employed nearly four times since 1870. It has increased the percentage of gainfully employed in our population from 34.7% in 1880 to 39.4% in 1930.

...has increased the share of the national income that goes to these workers (does not include those who work for themselves) from 38% in 1850 to 65% in 1929, at about which level it has remained since that time despite the depression.

...has increased the industrial worker's money wages. In 1929 they were three times as high as in 1890.

...has increased the purchasing power of wages—money wages related to living costs—by 48% during the same period.

...has decreased the average hours of labor from 60 hours per week in 1890 to 48 hours.

...has done all this upon average profits of only 4 cents out of each dollar of sales (1919-1929 figures).

BUILDS OWN TOMBSTONE

TO KEEP HIMSELF BUSY

Ireton, Ia. (AP)—John Van Wyhe has just finished his own grave monument, a project which has kept him busy since he retired from active farming.

Van Wyhe designed the stone, built molds and fashioned it of concrete "because I simply couldn't stand around doing nothing until I died."

"And," he added, "if I thought I'd be using it in the next few years I'd dig my own grave."

Squirrels Reveal
When Seeds Ripen

St. Paul (AP)—Squirrels are the finger men for the great "seed robberies" by state forest service rangers so that Minnesota's forests can be perpetuated.

This year 24,000,000 trees will be planted in Minnesota; trees grown from seed-cones taken when squirrels, one of nature's greatest hoarders, tipped off rangers the time was ripe to gather cones.

Corns from Norway, White and Jack pine and white spruce trees also are examined to ascertain if they are ready for planting but

"Right-Hand Helpers"

for the Housewife

The busy housewife walks enough without walking to pay bills.

And her allowance won't permit paying twice.

A checking account and a fountain pen are her two "right-hand helpers".
